

Homeopathic prophylaxis and the history of homeopathy in epidemics and pandemic

Cathy May Lemmon

Bircham International University, Spain

Abstract

Homeopathy is known today because of how well it has been working preventatively as well as with epidemics and pandemics. Hahnemann himself learned of its efficacy in both – and this has been further researched and documented very well since then. What I will present is an overview of the prophylactic use of homeopathic medicines, the numbers supportive of these historic facts, as well as estimations of why it is and always has been effectively working to “educate the immune system”, promoting immunity from disease as well as healing from epidemics/pandemics. Supportive and comparative numbers and statistics from many nations of the world will be shared.

Biography

Cathy May Lemmon has her homeopathic practise outside of Dallas, Texas, USA. Her primary focus within her practise is the nontoxic immunization option, homeoprophylaxis (“HP”). Through this, she has established an international nonprofit organization, Homeoprophylaxis: A Worldwide Choice for Disease Prevention (HPWWC), through which she has presented conferences in Texas, the Netherlands, and India. She is working now to establish HP on a local basis in the nations of the world. Her research is establishing and verifying the historic evidence of HP and homeopathy in epidemics/pandemics. Cathy has works published in many international publications

12th International Conference on Traditional Medicine and Acupuncture | May 27, 2021

Citation: Cathy May Lemmon, Homeopathic prophylaxis and the history of homeopathy in epidemics and pandemic, Traditional Medicine 2021, 12th International Conference on Traditional Medicine and Acupuncture, May 27th, 07